Burglars visited two houses in Wichita Thursday morning. A lone burglar en tered the home of J. F. McCoy, assist-

Market street was entered about 3 o clock yesterday morning and the burgiar got away with Mr. Frost's trousers containing about six dollars in money and it is reported that he also secured two damonds valued at 1800. Mr. Frost would be added to the contraining about the contraining as the contraining as the contraining the contraini not admit that his fine sparklers were stolen, a though his friends noticed that he was not wearing them yesterday. As in the former case, the burglar entered by prying up a kitchen window. He ransacked the house thoroughly and unlocked the front door and left the house leaving the door open. He sarched the house thoroughly, but all that has been reported stolen was the money and discussed.

The name of the young man who jumped from the rain across salt Fork was never published, and it is said that the authorities heid by the Wednesday so in connecshow were mot sure of the name in the discharge papers being his correct name. From his appearance as given in various articles published at that time the young man was a well bred Englishman, and gave every evidence that he was a membrany given ber of the highest families in England. The body was interred in Ponca City, but the papers found on his person were preserved and some attempts have been preserved and some attempts have been made to clear up his identity but without success.

As the article was published under a Wichita dateline, the young Englishman at San Mateo naturally thought the Wichita officers had something to do in the case. The letter received by Crner McCollister is as follows:
